Source: Correspondence from North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services, January 15, 2008.

Additional Information: When the State psychiatric hospitals' acute (admissions) units reach 110% capacity, no admissions are accepted until those units are once again below 110% capacity. This policy was put into effect in January 2007. Cherry Hospital has not been on delay – the hospital has been over capacity, but has been able to divert referrals rather than delay admissions. Following is the number of patients delayed at each of the three hospitals experiencing a delay in December, 2007.
